These spaces provide the physical context for much of what we do and bike to the architecture which houses them.The propose of this course is to introduce to students of interior dishing those fundamental elements which make up our mterior environments. It outlines the characteristics of each element and presents the choices we have in selecting and arranging theses of them into design patterns. In making these decisions, emphasis is placed on basic design principles and how design relationships determine the functional, structural, and aesthetic qualities of interior spaces. The limits of interior design are difficult to define precisely since it lies in the continuum between architecture and product design. This introduction to interior design is therefore broad in space. The intent, however, is to accessible as possible, and stimulate future in depth study and research.
